West Virginia OK'd online casinos in March 2019, with Governor Jim Justice, the owner of an in-state casino himself, allowing the bill to become law. Like in Pennsylvania, it wasn't exactly an expedited rollout. Online casino-goers had to wait until July 2020 for DraftKings Casino to officially open the market. A month later, BetMGM, in conjunction with The Greenbrier (Gov. Justice's property), joined the fray.

Online casino gaming is now live in Connecticut, but, unlike the other states, only two operators are in the state. DraftKings Casino and FanDuel Casino are the lucky two, due to their partnerships with the state's two tribes. The Connecticut Lottery has a sportsbook partnership with SugarHouse in place, but that does not include online casino gaming. Additional operators may come to the state eventually, but DraftKings and FanDuel are the big two in CT for the foreseeable future.
