They seem to have access to brake line patterns from other suppliers for various models. However, if youre looking for something special, itll take a few days. Just want stock replacement so should be alright. Have only used Hel before so should have checked around! Need more fuel range, thinking of going for a nomad tank. Could also do with some more fuel range, but not as much as the 30 ltr tank Safari Tanks can modify to fit.! Instructions are here Tank is 22 litre and is good for 400km to reserve under easy going, abt 325 to reserve in sand. We bought tank from USA using link in above instructions. Easily taken off when only trail day riding, great for the big adventures, overnight etc. I recently expanded my DRZ tank and posted this on youtube. Another great cheap option! Hi Stinky, I thought about a rear tank, but the convience of not having to stop and mess about with unloading kit, pouring out a jerry can, and packing everything back, made the bigger tank option the best. Been thinking about this mod for my missus Drz. How does the seat fit I paddle around on my own mostly doing State Forest gravel roads. I have a DR650 which Ill be moving on I think and a VStrom 650. My wife truly loves me but shed like one less bike in the garage. I have no rack on the back and thatll probably be the first purchase. LockyV7 made me a you beaut bbq and pannier rack for the DR650 but I haven't started much research yet on racks but it looks a bit thin. Cheers Guys. Click to expand. I have been trying to review my options and was wondering what everyone else is using. At the moment, I still have the stock Dunlop D605, I think on the front. It looks as if the previous owner has already changed the back tyre because it is a Pirelli. So far, I've only got the Dunlop D605 and the Bridgestone Trailwing as choices. I do a bit of riding on the road, so I don't want anything too dirt-aggressive. Dad has got a set of Trailwings on the XT250 and they seem to be pretty good. Any help is appreciated. I recently tried a Mitas E09 front it was OK on firm stuff but useless in soft sand. I had no directional control. The DRZ250 is still looking sulky in the shed sitting next to my Yamaha 290 and DRZ400. It is not feeling the love and needs a new home. Anyone keen 970km on clock. Only ridden by an old bloke on Sundays. Something went wrong. Cancel Thanks, we'll look into this. All Rights Reserved. I'm in the process of rebuilding an 05 DRZ250 which I swapped for my old PC which I thought was pretty damn good.

It's just not running and needed to be put back together. I wanna know if anyone has any service manuals or diagrams of the engine they could email me or if there's a website. I've looked around Google trying to find a manual but don't want to pay for one. Only if I really have to I just want to fix this bike up and sell it off anyway with no means to ride it. I'm just about to put the piston housing case on and cannot figure out which way the chain slider goes on the inside and where it goes and the engine is still on the bike to trying to look inside is a bit of a nightmare. And cannot figure out which way the cam chain goes either. I've also read somewhere that when you get to the cams to have them facing each other, count from the exhaust side at arrow marking 1 on the cam, count 17 links then the intake cam should have arrow 3 pointing at the 17th link on the chain, which should have the cams facing each other to what I can gather. This is after you get top dead centre first of course.; If you guys have any other info please let me know. Thanks in advance The manual spells out how to set the cam timing and offers a picture of the cam gears and chain position. If you plan on keeping the bike, the manual will be your best friend.
