He pays the bills writing software for animation, automation, broadcast graphics, and realtime control for companies including Abekas, Pinnacle, Omneon, CBS, and ABC. He is also an Author, Writer and Reviewer and can be read on I purchased one of your portable test cards and decided to shoot the card on each scene change. Well, I've been trying to do that, and I'm hearing that the editor finds this to be a very valuable tool. She is able to quickly match shots and produce a more uniformed look to each scene and to an overall production as well. The fact that you are Canadian is just icing on the cake. Allinall, a truly terrific product that I should have been using years ago. I'm glad I'm using it now! We use CamAligns to service HD and SD cameras. Necessary tests gain, gamma, flare comps, black level, colorimetry, detail level and white shading are completed quickly and precisely with the charts. Weve looked at everything else for our Los Angeles, Toronto and Vancouver facilities but nothing compares. DSC charts are the standard of the broadcast industry. Temperature is changed linearly at a specified rate and the sum of all heat flows occurring at a given temperature is obtained. On the other hand, MDSC uses a sinusoidal heating rate which allows for determination of the reversing and nonreversing heat flows. This can be used to more definitively identify thermal transitions and to separate out nonreversible effects when measuring reversible transitions such as the glass transition of a polymer. Examples of reversible transitions typically include the glass transition and most melting transitions and nonrevisable transitions include evaporation, crystallization, decomposition and cure transition phenomenon, etc. Courtesy Dr. Benny D.
