Padraig Jack, the singer/songwriter who has already written about homelessness and mental health in his single 'Streetbed Ridden', will be performing at Monroes in Galway on October 7th in aid of the fight against Homelessness. The artist said; 'It can't be a good idea to allow housing to be traded and be treated as an asset, whether everyone in the population was comfortably housed or whether, as is the case in Ireland now, so many are without housing and so many more are a rent increase or missed pay cheque away from losing the roof over their head. More specifically I feel very lucky to have never experienced being homeless. I think it's important that we continue to support organisations like Focus Ireland who are working tirelessly to ensure fewer people are living on the streets.'

It really couldn't be easier. There are so many football betting markets to choose from. The simplest of which are match outcome (win, lose or draw), and correct score – simply pick your match and bet on what you think the final score will be. You can also do this for half-time scores too. Then there's the goalscorer markets – for example whether a particular player will score or if they'll get the first goal. Other match odds include the likes of:
