With over thirty casinos, there's definitely something from every type of gambler in London's exclusive casinos. If you're headed to London and looking for a great casino gaming experience but not quite sure where to go, browse through our directory offering extensive information on the most notable casinos in London and find one that suits your tastes!

Gaming options The Sportsman is more known for its slots than anything else, but they do offer a range of other games, including Punto Banco, Three Card Poker, American Roulette, and Blackjack. They also have a Dice table, which lets gamers experience a new gambling experience, right in the Sportsman Casino. Unfortunately, there are no

With one of the most renowned restaurants in Kensington and a gaming environment that's unlike any other, gamblers who wish to taste the life of an aristocrat need not look any further than Maxims Casino Club. Since the 1800s, London has been home to a great gambling scene, beginning with the opening of Crockford's in 1828. The wealthiest and most prominent members of society were drawn to the exclusive experience offered by Crockford's, and soon, other casinos began sprouting up in the area. Today, there are dozens of casinos around the U.K., but London's casinos stand out because of their commitment to exclusivity.

The appeal of London's casinos lies mainly in their rich history of private gaming. Housing some of the oldest casinos in the world, London has built a reputation for exclusivity, with most of their casinos requiring membership and enforcing strict dress codes on their patrons. This reputation also has a lot to do with the location of these casinos, as the main gambling areas in London can be found in exclusive parts of the city, like Mayfair, Park Lane, and Piccadilly. These areas are known for having housed celebrities and members of the royal family alike, and to this day, properties in these areas fetch millions of pounds.

Fine dining restaurants that make use of fresh local ingredients are a staple of London's casinos, but a wide range of slot machines and gaming tables are what really draw the crowds in. Because the gambling industry is so big in London, operators make it a point to update their slot machines regularly. Tournaments and cash games are also a common sight in London's casinos. In fact, operators must hold them regularly if they're to compete with the online gambling industry, which isn't just legal, but also quite popular in the UK.

London's Napoleons Casino has been bought by Mayfair Casino Limited, one of the newest neophytes to the London casino market, from A&S Leisure Group. In England, Napoleons Casino is situated in the very heart of London, in Leicester Square.

Ltd mayfair casino

George Polhill, Managing Director at Mayfair Casino Limited has said that they at Mayfair Casino Limited are more than elated to have made this purchase.

He has declared, "Napoleons is one of the West End's most well known and long established entertainment venues, whether for after work, pre theatre or gaming crowds. Our immediate priority is to make the transition to new ownership as smooth as possible and ensure that casino members and guests continue to have the same high-level customer experience."

Expressing respect for Napoleons Casino, Polhill has also gone to add, "It is an exciting time in our business and we are thrilled to join the dynamic London casino market."

A&S Leisure Group is a privately-owned family-run firm that has been in the casino business for almost half a century.

Having started in Sheffield, and gradually expanding to other British cities, it is now one of the most influential gaming companies, and it is entirely UK-bound. It has been the owner of Napoleons for a long time, but they are happy to hand the control over to such respectful firm like Mayfair Casino Limited.

Dave Allen, Chairman of A&S Leisure Group Lt, has further commented, "Napoleons Casino has operated in Leicester Square for nearly 30 years during which time it has proven to be an unqualified success story. Much of the credit goes to the casino's loyal and hardworking staff and we wish Mayfair Casino Ltd the best of luck with their new acquisition."
