You can usually enjoy American roulette and European roulette at most online casinos. But what are the major differences? In a European roulette game, the wheel has 37 pockets (1-36 and the single zero). In American roulette, there is an extra green pocket, the double zero.

So, why does this make a difference? Because your outside bets lose if the double zero pocket comes up and the house edge will increase. In European roulette, the house edge is just 2.7%. In American roulette, however, the edge increases to 5.26%.

Learning how to play European roulette is easy since it's one of the simplest casino games out there. Get started with our quick, step-by-step guide:

First, select an online European roulette game from the casino table games lobby. You can search or filter by game type, and some casinos will display the minimum and maximum stakes available.

On the European roulette game screen you will see a row of colored chips. These denote different values. It's important to decide your budget before you start playing. Also be aware of the minimum and maximum table stakes before you play.

Select a chip and drag and drop it onto the graphic table layout. "Inside bets" like Straight Up numbers will have a minimum stake attached. Outside bets like Red/Black and Odd/Even oftentimes carry a higher minimum stake.

Remember, you can undo your bet if you made a mistake. You can also double your bet to save time.

Once your chips are down, you can play European roulette online for real money. Click on the Spin button and the European roulette wheel will spin. You can continue to place bets until the computer announces 'no more bets' and the table freezes you out.

The ball will come to a rest in one of the roulette wheel pockets. Winnings are calculated instantly and paid out. The game resets and you can play again.

To save time placing chips, you will have the option to rebet. This means the previous spin's bets will be repeated for the next spin. You can also clear any or all chips or double your stakes for bigger wins.

There are two types of wager in online European roulette: inside and outside. Inside bets cover the single numbers and their combinations. Outside bets, meanwhile, cover whole sections of numbers.

Straight Up/Single Number (35/1): A straight up bet is a wager on a single number. It pays 35/1 but has odds of just 2.7%.

Split (17/1): A split bet is a wager on two adjoining numbers. The payout is 17/1.

Street (11/1): A street wager is a bet on three adjoining numbers in a straight line. This 3-number combination pays 11/1.

Corner (8/1): A corner bet covers four numbers that sit alongside one another in a square. The payout is 8/1.

Double Street/6-Line (5/1): A double street bet is a wager on six numbers in two adjacent rows of 3. The double street is a popular bet in some roulette systems.

Columns (2/1): The 36 main numbers on a European roulette table are split into three columns of 12. The single zero doesn't form part of the regular 36 numbers. You can bet on any or all of the columns, and each pays 2/1.

Dozens (2/1): The European roulette table is also split lengthways into three sections of 12 numbers. A 'dozen' bet also pays 2/1.

Red (1/1): Half the numbers 1-36 are colored red. You can bet on any red number coming up, and this wager pays 1/1.

Black (1/1): This bet is on any of the 18 black numbers appearing. It also pays 1/1.

Low/1-18 (1/1): The Low bet is a wager on any number from 1-18 appearing. It pays 1/1.

High/19-36 (1/1): Alternatively, you can bet on the High numbers appearing, 19-36. This pays 1/1.

You will have a wide range of bets available when you play European roulette online. While the Straight Up bets offer the highest payouts, they are also the riskiest. Betting on red, black, odd or even isn't exciting but it carries the best chance for long-term wins.

You can also mix up your roulette bets. Save your larger bets for red or black, then cover these with smaller wagers on a single number or split/corner bet.

Every single number pays 35/1, including the zero. However, your red/black or odd/even bets will always lose if the zero comes up. The zero helps create the house edge in real money European roulette and should be avoided.

You need to plan your betting when you play online casino European roulette. Never bet more than you can afford, and always stick to a staking plan.

For example, if you have $100 don't bet more than 1% on a single number and 5% on an outside bet. Consider banking every win and using your core $100 to gamble with.

All reputable online casinos will have a bonus for roulette players. You might be able to claim cash back on losing spins or activate a deposit match bonus with your play.

It's important to check the game eligibility of the bonus first. Online European roulette might not always contribute toward a casino bonus. And if it does contribute, only 10 or 20% may be eligible. Check the terms and conditions before you commit.

When you play a European roulette game online, every spin is independent from another. The random number generator ensures that each spin is totally fair.

However, that doesn't stop the casino listing a full history of all previous bets. Players can be superstitious and will follow trends in 'hot' and 'cold' numbers. Avoid following the history and trust that each spin is independent.

It's easy to play European Roulette for free: you choose your stakes, place your bets, and spin the wheel. But it's important to understand the true odds of the bets you are making.

The best payout in a European roulette game is 35/1 for a single number. However, the odds of hitting a single number are just 2.7%. The payout for an outside bet like Even/Odd is only 1/1 but the odds of hitting are much higher. For long-term profits, the outside bets are the best bet. You can try these bets the next time you play this roulette game online.

Yes. Online European roulette is game based on chance and has a high percentage of luck. Like all casino games, roulette also has a house edge but with some clever strategy, you can improve your long-term chances.
