European roulette offers players better odds than other versions including American roulette, primarily due to the American version having an extra double "0" that isn't present on the European wheel. The addition of the "00" tile increases the house edge from around 2.65% to 5.3%, so it's worth looking for the European roulette option if it's available.

In online roulette, you place a bet simply by clicking the relevant part of the roulette board, after selecting your bet amount. You can take as much time as you need. In a real casino, you would do the same by physically placing chips on the board with a croupier present. The croupier tells the table when betting is over and then spins the wheel.

There are three main types of roulette to play: European, American and French, with live roulette versions available at many online casinos.

The number of possible outcomes is different, but the multiples of your bet you get when you win are the same. That means American roulette has a worse RTP (94.74%) than European roulette (97.3%). You should therefore play European roulette whenever it's available, because your chances of winning are quite a lot higher. Of course, this doesn't really matter when playing just for fun, but it doesn't hurt to pick the better version nevertheless.

Most of these are simpler than they sound. Take, for instance, the Martingale roulette strategy. Simply place a small bet with even odds – for example, red, black, odd or even. If you win, repeat the bet. If you lose, double the bet. If you lose again, double it again. Repeat this until you win, then return to your original stake.

Live roulette is an online version of roulette that uses a live dealer. You can find live versions of American, European, and French roulette – the only difference is that the games are streamed and played in real time. The dealer will spin the wheel, and you can join tables to play with other online players.

That brings us to the types of roulette you can play. There are two main types of roulette:

Casino roulette play

American roulette is one of the most popular roulette variations out there. The major difference lies on the wheel, which features a double zero, alongside the standard single zero found in European and French roulette. Unfortunately, the double zero pushes the odds further in the casino's favor and increases the house edge to 5.26%.

Note: We mentioned that almost all bets have the same RTP. There is a bet on American roulette on five numbers (0, 00, 1, 2 and 3), which has the worst payout ratio you can get on a roulette table. If you ever play roulette for real money, you should definitely stay away from this bet, and ideally from American roulette in general, as well. Check out our full list of roulette odds to learn more about the differences between various types of roulette bets.

If you're new to this, don't rush in with a big bet. Instead, kick things off with a couple of taster bets – maybe a simple red/black or odd/even bet. This gives you a chance to see if you enjoy a particular variation of roulette without risking much money. You can also get familiar with the different chip denominations, and the animation of the wheel. Plus, many players like to look at the pattern of recent outcomes before deciding on their bet.

That's why our reviewers favor sites which offer a wide range of deposit and withdrawal methods.

There's no catch, no hidden fees and no need to deposit your own money. Play roulette for fun and enjoy playing those riskier bets while you get to know the game. If you then want to move on to play real money roulette, make sure to change your betting habits and use a roulette strategy so you don't go bust too soon.

Free roulette is played just for the fun of it, whereas in real money roulette there's the additional thrill of potentially huge sums of money up for grabs.

Place wagers by placing colored chips on the roulette table. The object of the game is to correctly guess where the ball will land on a roulette wheel. As wagers are being placed, the dealer spins the roulette wheel in one direction. As the wheel spins, the dealer drops the ball so that it travels in the opposite direction. Wagers may be placed until the dealer announces, "No more bets." When the ball finally rests on a segment in the roulette wheel, the dealer calls out the winning number and places a marker on it. The dealer will then clear the losing wagers and pay out the winning wagers.

Pure pay n play casinos

One of the great things about playing free online roulette is the variety of different games on offer. Unlike the classic version you'll find at land casinos in 2022, playing at an online roulette casino opens a world of exclusive roulette variations unavailable elsewhere.

Remember, every online casino is different and can offer different variants of this traditional casino game. When you do play roulette with no deposit, you'll be able to get a feel for the speed of the software, the location of the buttons, and how to place specific bets. And you can do it all without risking any real money. Bearing that in mind, it's easy to see why people love to play free roulette online so much.

Roulette rules are pretty simple. You can place a wide range of bets, which can be divided into two groups – inside bets and outside bets. Inside bets are placed on the numbers themselves (a single number, two neighboring numbers, four neighboring numbers, etc.). Outside bets are placed on the area around the numbers themselves and include options like color (red or black), even or odd number, dozen, etc.

European roulette is the most common roulette game at online casinos. The European wheel has 37 pockets numbered from 0 to 36. The single zero brings the house edge, also known as the casino's advantage, down to just 2.7%. The low house edge is one of the reasons European roulette is a favorite among players.

Free play games are a great place to begin with online roulette, even if you have some experience of playing in land casinos. Without risking your own money, or making a real cash deposit upfront, you can bet without consequences. Even if your eventual plan is moving on to play real money roulette online, playing for free will prep you for the real cash experience.

A casino knows that people play

There's no need to make a deposit before you start playing free online roulette as no real money changes hands in this game. However, if you'd like to move on to playing real money roulette you will need to deposit funds into your online account, so it's still worth checking out the banking options offered by your chosen casino when you start.

Fortunately, that's not necessarily needed. Roulette is a very simple game. You basically just need to place a bet on any number or other sections on the roulette table layout and wait for the result of the spin. You can't influence the result of the game and almost all bets have the same return to player, so the only thing you can influence is the volatility (by changing the types of bets you place).

Players should not remove winning wagers or place new bets until all winners have been paid. After the roulette table is cleared, the dealer announces, "Place your bets," signaling the beginning of a new game.
