I haven't always been a fan of Christmas. When I was a kid, I saw my dad putting all the presents under the tree. I was very surprised because I thought a happy old man in a red suit was watching over us kids. After that happened, I knew Santa Claus wasn't real. Also, when I grew up, I found that everyone tried to find a perfect present at stores. The holiday felt like a big excuse to go shopping.

However, when my friend invited me to celebrate Christmas with her last year, I started to see things differently. I thought we'd just have a meal together and give each other gifts, but I was wrong. When the day came, she took me to a food bank. We helped put together and deliver bags of food to the poor. I was scared of getting close to those kinds of people at first, but that changed quickly. When I handed them their Christmas dinners, their eyes showed nothing but joy, love, and thanks. It was the first real meal in a long time for some of them. Because of that experience, I now know for sure that Santa Claus is real.

Several students are running for class leader. Here is what they said to everyone.

Chloe: As your class leader, the first thing I will do is make our time at school easier and more comfortable. That means moving our first class from eight o'clock to nine. That way, we can have more time to sleep.

Reggie: A lot of you have said you're tired of wearing the same thing as everyone else. We should be able to wear whatever we want, like T-shirts, jeans, and dresses. So, if you choose me, I will get the principal to get rid of school uniforms for all students.

Logan: We think school is for feeding our minds, but we forget it's for feeding our bodies, too. I know the food here is not very healthy. So, as a class leader, I'm going to make sure the menu has more fresh vegetables and nothing fried.

Vicky: I know nobody likes homework, and that is also true for me. If you make me your leader, I'm going to get the teachers to reduce the homework they give us each night by half. I believe we should be spending more time on our interests instead of reviewing our lessons when we're not in school.
