Oscar had a big test coming up. He needed to do really well on it, so he made a plan to study long and hard to prepare for it. For the whole week before the test, he spent two hours every night going over his notes and doing practice questions. To make sure everything was correct, he got one of his parents to check his work. By the end of the week, he felt really ready. In his mind, he could see himself acing the test and getting the highest grade.

Finally, it was the day of the big test. Oscar took a few minutes to calm himself down before he had to take it. Then, he made himself comfortable in his seat and got down to work. He read every question carefully before he wrote anything on the paper. Though he worked slowly and steadily, it took him less than thirty minutes to finish all of the questions. However, he didn't sit back and relax. Instead, he spent the rest of the time checking and double-checking his answers. For him, it was better to be safe than sorry.
