Ivy: Check out this couch. I think it's pretty cool and has a very interesting look. What do you think?

Mark: It's not too bad. I like that it's leather, but I don't think the color is right for us.

Ivy: No big deal. We can check with the clerk and have him tell us the other available colors.

Mark: Not so fast. I know that you like it, but I believe there is another problem.

Ivy: I haven't really made up my mind yet. So, what's wrong?

Mark: It's too long. The space in our living room for the couch is much shorter.

Ivy: That can't be. It looks like it's the right length.

Mark: I know for sure that it's too big. The measurements on the display card are different from those of our space.

Ivy: That's too bad. I thought it would go really well with all the other things in our living room.

Mark: Why don't we keep looking? There are still lots more in this place, and if we can't find anything here, we can go to other stores.

Ivy: Sounds great, but let's continue after lunch. I'm starting to get hungry after spending three hours here looking at so many couches.
