五、閱讀測驗（每題 3 分，共 6 題）

(一)

Dear Diary,

I went to a zoo today. There, I saw many interesting animals. Of all the animals, bats are the most special to me. They are the second largest group of all animals. They have more than 500 kinds. What a big family! Bats' sizes are very different from each other. The wingspan of the largest bats can grow up to 200 cm. However, the smallest kinds have a wingspan of 10 cm.

Although the kinds of bats are various, they still have something in common. That is, all the bats hang upside down to sleep. That's because their back feet are very small, much shorter than their front feet. Because of this, bats can't stand or walk. So, when they are on the ground, they can only crawl. Even so, bats can still move very fast when they fly in the sky.

For me, bats are really special animals. If I have another chance to visit the zoo, I will learn more about them.

Dear Aggie,

My daughter and I used to be close. She would tell me everything about her feelings and her day at school. However, something changed, and she is not herself anymore. She appears to be hiding things from me. Take the other night for example. Something was really wrong because I heard crying coming from her room. I didn't see her crying myself, but I saw her face when she came out. Her eyes were all red and puffy, and her nose was as big as a tomato. When I asked her about it, she just smiled and went into the bathroom. I can't rest at night because of this. What should I do?

Worried Mom

Dear Worried Mom,

Things aren't always that bad. We often make them more serious in our heads, but in real life, they are nothing to worry about. Also, your daughter is growing up and needs more space than before. She has to learn to do things by herself, so let her. It will be hard to watch her doing that, but when she really needs you, she will come to you. You're doing a great job, so take it easy on yourself.

Aggie
