English singer and songwriter Adele has taken the world by storm. She came into this world on May 5, 1988, and she got an interest in music at an early age. The singing of Americans Etta James and Ella Fitzgerald really influenced her a lot.

At 16 years old, Adele wrote her first song, "Hometown Glory." Two years later, she graduated from the BRIT School for Performing Arts and Technology. When she was a student there, she made a demo with three songs for one of her classes. Then, a friend of hers heard it and put it on the Internet. Before long, a record company called Adele and got her to work with them. In 2007, the world got to hear her first-ever written song.

Adele's first record was 19, and it went on sale in 2008. It quickly became a success and even won her two Grammy Awards. In 2011, she came out with 21. It has really popular songs like, "Rolling in the Deep" and "Someone Like You," and won her six Grammys. Four years later, she followed that up with 25. In its first week, its lead song, "Hello," sold more than three million copies.

Dear Gabby,

I am worried. My youngest daughter has been eating less and less at every meal over the past few months. She's not hungry, but I don't believe her because I have found half-eaten fruit and empty juice bottles in her room. What's more, she gets tired more easily and doesn't want to move or go out now.

It's strange because she loved playing sports and hanging out with her friends in her free time. Before, she used to be happy, healthy, and full of life, but now, all that has changed. If she really has an eating problem, I want to put a stop to it. What should I do?

Anxious Mom

Dear Anxious Mom,

You are right. Your daughter has an eating problem, but it's not too late. In fact, you are lucky because she hasn't done it for very long. Also, she hasn't done too much damage to her body, so you still have time to help her.

To fix this problem, you need to talk to your daughter and find out about her life. Some things may be going on, and she may not want to let you know about them. When you sit down with her, you should talk to her as her friend but not her mom. That way, she might share and listen more.
