One morning, a man went to check on his goose. When he looked into her nest, he found a shiny yellow egg, and it was very heavy in his hand. He was about to throw it away because it didn't feel right, but he changed his mind and took it home. There, he found something. Although it looked like any other egg, it was an egg of pure gold.

The same thing happened every morning. Soon, the man became rich by taking the gold eggs to the market and selling them. Although the goose gave him one gold egg every day, that was not enough for him. Then, an idea crossed his mind. He said to himself, "If I kill the goose and open her up, I will be able to get all her gold at once." However, when he did that, he found nothing. Also, his precious goose was "dead".

There is a fox. It is very hungry because there is no food for it to eat. It is very sad and walks slowly. It walks through a vineyard. Suddenly, it sees a grapevine and there are many grapes on it. The fox is so hungry and tries to get some grapes. It jumps high but just can't reach any. It tries several times but never succeeds. In the end, it is tired and decides to stop. It talks to itself, “I won't eat the grapes because they must be very sour.” Then, it leaves and still feels hungry.

The story above is The Fox and the Grapes, one of Aesop's fables. Because of this story, the English phrase “sour grapes” appeared. We can see this phrase in many other languages, like Chinese.
